Job Description

Dr. Stephanie Marita Carpenter at the Arizona State University College of Health Solutions is seeking a part-time research coordinator to help with the coordination of daily lab operations. Dr. Carpenter's lab studies emotions and engagement, and their impact on health behaviors, using methods that adapt to the unique needs of the individual. Research studies utilize both quantitative and qualitative methods, with a combination of in-person and virtually conducted research. Current research projects are focused on how to develop engaging and effective health behavior change interventions that promote health equity and address several outcomes, including substance use, weight loss, stress regulation, and more.

The ideal candidate will have previous experience as a research assistant in a Behavioral Science or Psychology laboratory, experience with subject recruitment and conducting research studies, an interest in health behavior change intervention research, and will have completed coursework in research methods. Advanced undergraduate and master's level students are especially well-suited to this position. The candidate will be expected to work the majority of hours in-person at the Arizona Biomedical Collaborative Building (ABC1), located on the ASU Downtown campus (425 N. 5th Street, Phoenix, AZ, 85004). Applications are welcome from individuals of all backgrounds, including those traditionally underrepresented in science.

Applications must include the following: (i) a copy of your CV or resume, (ii) a brief 1-page, single-spaced statement of interest describing how your background and qualifications make you well-suited to this position, and (iii) the contact information of two professional references who can speak to your qualifications and fit for this position.

Department Statement

The College of Health Solutions (CHS) is dedicated to translating scientific advances into practical interventions to improve health outcomes through education, research and service. We equip students with the knowledge and skills to influence healthier lifestyle choices; develop creative interventions to improve the health of people and populations; analyze and translate large amounts of health data into solutions; and maximize the technology, science, business and application of diagnostics. CHS research programs encompass basic, discovery science, clinical trials, intervention science and measurement of health outcomes. CHS takes an interdisciplinary approach to address the complex systems that underpin health problems. The college is highly collaborative, transparent and team-oriented with an organizational structure that includes translational teams, affinity networks and academic programs to improve the health of people and communities.

The current training programs include behavioral health, biomedical diagnostics, biomedical informatics, exercise science, health promotion, health sciences, kinesiology, medical studies, nutrition, population health, science of health care delivery, and speech and hearing science. Our programs are offered at ASU's Downtown Phoenix, Tempe, Polytechnic, West and Lake Havasu campuses, as well as on Mayo Clinic's campus in north Phoenix.
